Improving connectivity for Navajo Nation first responders

Navajo Nation first responders are getting a major boost in their wireless communications. FirstNet is constructing new, purpose-built sites where first responders said they needed improved coverage. Plus, FirstNet and AT&T are collaborating with Commnet Broadband, NTUA, NTUA Wireless and the Navajo Nation Telecommunications Regulatory Commission to help build out additional Band 14 spectrum and AT&T commercial LTE spectrum bands across more than 100 sites.

“As a paramedic, our job is to take care of the patient. Communication is key.”

“From my point of view, the best thing FirstNet offers us here at DHR Health is a reliable means of communication. We have a network we can rely on if there’s a major incident, if there’s a storm,” says Daniel Tuttle, director of emergency medical services here at DHR Health. Read more to see how FirstNet helps him connect to critical resources.
